

Reduce Office Clutter: Your Three-Step Plan to Increase Productivity, Efficiency, and Profitability

BY PAT HEYDLAUFF

Research shows there is a direct correlation between productivity and clutter. Productivity and profits decline when clutter and chaos rise. Do piles of paper, disorganization, and information mismanagement take over your workplace while efficiency and effectiveness vanish right before your eyes?

According to the National Association of Professional Organizations, paper clutter is the number one problem for most businesses. Studies show the average person wastes 4.3 hours per week searching for papers, which adds stress and frustration to the workplace while reducing concentration and creative thinking. The average executive loses one hour of productivity per day searching for missing information. And, according to the Small Business Administration, the biggest burden for small business is mishandled paperwork, which hinders small businesses from properly servicing customers, increasing sales, and improving the bottom line.

In addition, many companies deal with stress daily, and unfortunately clutter can help add to the stress of the daily grind. Statistics show 75 percent or more of all physician visits are stress-related, and by uncluttering, you will not only increase productivity, security, and profits, but reduce overall stress and medical care costs as well.

Step 1: Think Big

Whether you are working in a huge corporation or a one-person office, there are several benefits to uncluttering and organizing, including:

- Increased productivity and profitability,
- Information is kept confidential and secure,
- Reduced mental overload and stress,
- Reduced workplace accidents and spills, and
- Time is saved and effectiveness is improved.

Your first step is to devise an information management system. However, this is not just a fancy filing system. Information comes from many sources, including snail mail, e-mail, text messages, cell phones, and courier services, to name a few. All of this information needs to be organized in order to be profitably utilized, put into permanent archives, or tossed. You also need to have the necessary tools to make the system efficient and uniformly useable, such as file folders, filing cabinets for current information, boxes for archives, and scanners with backup capabilities for managing information electronically.

Step 2: Start Now

Whether you are responsible for creating your own information management system or if those higher up are in charge, it's still up to you to take action and make it happen. Here are some useful tips:

- Set aside time weekly to manage and organize information. Adhere to that commitment like an appointment and you will stay ahead of the game.
- Always organize your desk at the end of the day, so at least 80 percent of the desktop is visible. This will make going to work each morning a joy because desk stress and mental overload will decrease while your productivity increases.
- Eliminate anything on top of your desk that is not used often. Put everything else into drawers, cubicles, or containers that are easily accessible. Your efficiency will double and your fatigue will decrease.
- Limit yourself to only one personal photograph, placing it in the southwest section of your work area to energize relationships. This will increase focus on the work at hand, not others.
- If you need to access files at a moment's notice or need a reminder to follow up on specific projects regularly, use a vertical desktop file sorter instead of stacks, and color-code them. Use green folders for new clients, red folders for established clients, and yellow folders for less important but still necessary information. You or colleagues can quickly find client information, which improves client relations and results.

- Handle information only once, whether on paper or in your e-mail inbox. Make a decision as to whether the information requires you to take action or if it can be tossed or deleted. This will make you become more efficient and lower your stress levels.

Step 3: Sustain Your Information Management System

Once you have devised your information management system and put your plan into action, you must focus energy onto it to keep it operating smoothly on a daily basis. It won't become part of the corporate culture or a personal habit if you don't do more than just unclutter and organize once or twice.

Create a "Clean Workspace Policy," and establish a reward system that is handed out weekly, such as a small trophy for each office that qualifies. If the trophy stays with that person for six months or a whole year, provide the winner with an extra reward, perhaps a day off or preferred parking for a month.

Post pictures of the winners in your employee lounge or common area, and recognize them at company meetings.

Encourage your employees to put one personal, creative item on their desks where stacks of paper used to be. This will serve as a reminder of how easy it is to stay clutter-free and stress-free.

Stress, clutter, and disorganization cost businesses thousands of dollars in lost profits, productivity, and time. By creating a plan to stay organized, and implementing these tips on a regular basis, you and your company can reap the benefits and your employees will be happier and healthier. CM

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

PAT HEYDLAUFF, president of Energy Design, helps business leaders streamline and transform their companies, resulting in employee satisfaction, client retention, and bottom line profitability. She energizes and enhances the effectiveness and efficiency of workplace environments using color, design, and organization principles. Her new book, Feng Shui: So Easy a Child Can Do It, provides change that leads to success and prosperity. Pat can be contacted at www.Energy-by-Design.com or 561-799-3443.

© 2009, Pat Heydlauff, all rights reserved. Published with permission.

Send comments about this article to cm@ncmahq.org.

Discuss this article with your peers online! Just go to www.ncmahq.org/cm0609/Heydlauff and click on "Join Discussion."

NEW—NEW—NEW!

Essential GSA Manual Now in Paperback!

For the first time, CCH is offering the complete General Services Administration Acquisition Manual (GSAM) in a convenient, portable paperback!

Our GSAM book has the complete text of the GSAR (48 CFR 500-599) and related agency guidance in a fully integrated format following the numbering system of the Code of Federal Regulations. The regulatory content is offset with a grey background, and is easily distinguished from the policy material. A comprehensive index is also provided.

This edition incorporates all GSAM changes issued through May 1, 2009. It includes the rewrites of GSAR parts 509, 522, 528, 542 and 543 and important changes concerning "Acquisition of Security and Law Enforcement Services" and "Protests, Disputes and Appeals."

For details and to order
call 800-248-3248
or visit www.onlinestore.cch.com
KEYWORD: GSAM

(Ask about our quantity discounts!)

ORDER TODAY!

CCH—Providing Reliable GC coverage for over 60 years!